

I (and my family) greatly resent any and all telemarketing calls, and will not committ to anything via phone solicitation. In particular, all solicitations via "fax" should be banned, since I personnally have to pay for the paper and ink-roll. Also, of particular irritation, are the "automated recorded calls". You can not even request to have your name removed from their list. Automated calls promoting political candidates up for election should also be banned. All these calls are very irritating, and have often interferred with the family dinner, or other activities from which we did not want to be disturbed. There are other ways to advertise.

Sincerely,
Mr. James D. Gagnon
